ORAL JUDGEMENT

The grievance made in this Special Criminal Application by the petitioner is wholly misconceived. The second application of the petitioner for furlough has already been decided. This fact has not been disclosed by the petitioner.

By this time, the petitioner certainly would have received the copy of the order passed by the competent authority on the second application for furlough.

In view of the statement made by the learned counsel for the respondent, which is not controverted by the learned counsel for the petitioner, nothing now substantial survives in this Special Criminal Application and the same is dismissed as premature.

However, dismissal of this Special Criminal Application will not come in the way of the petitioner to file a fresh application challenging the order of rejection of the application for furlough.
